MEMORANDUM OPINION
and
ORDER

After a thorough review of the records of Case No. 4:10-CV-055-A (which, before withdrawal of reference, was Adversary Proceeding No. 09-04165-rfn in Bankruptcy No. 09-41675-RFN-11 and Adversary Proceeding No. 09-04253-rfn in Bankruptcy No. 09-44425-RFN-11) and Case No. 4:10-CV-257-A (which, before withdrawal of reference, was Adversary Proceeding No. 09-04176-rfn in Bankruptcy No. 09-41675-rfn and Adversary Proceeding No. 09-04320-rfn in Bankruptcy No. 09-44425-RFN-11), the court has reached the following conclusions:

1. There should be a remand to the Court of Appeals, Second District of Texas, at Fort Worth, ("Fort Worth Court of Appeals") of the appeal that, before removals to the bankruptcy court, was carried on the docket of the Fort Worth Court of Appeals as Case No. 02-09-00025-CV, styled "Metro A, LLC, Denar Restaurants, LLC, Sun Holdings, LLC, POP Restaurants, LLC, Golden Restaurants, Inc., Firebrand Properties, LP, Corral Group, LP, Kansas Corral, LLC, Sunny Corral Management, LLC, Guillermo Perales, Frys [sic] Management, LLC, TAG Corral, LLC and Indie Corral, LLC, Appellants, v. Jessica Polley, Appellee."<sup>1</sup>

2. The stays created by 11 U.S.C. § 362 existing by reason of the bankruptcy cases mentioned in the caption should be lifted as to the appeal mentioned in paragraph 1 above, so that the parties to the appeal will be at liberty to take whatever action is appropriate in pursuit or resistance of the appeal, and the Fort Worth Court of Appeals will be at liberty to take such actions in reference to the appeal as it deems appropriate.

3. There should be a remand to the District Court of Tarrant County, Texas, 48th Judicial District, of the state court suit that, before removals to the bankruptcy court, was carried on the docket of such state district court as Case No. 48-232713-08, styled "Jessica Polley, Plaintiff, v. Metro A, LLC; Denar Restaurants, LLC; Sun Holdings, LLC; POP Restaurants, LLC; Golden Restaurants, Inc.; Firebrand Properties, LP; Corral Group, LP; Kansas Corral, LLC; Sunny Corral Management, LLC; Frys [sic] Management, LLC; TAG Corral, LLC; Indie Corral, LLC; and Guillermo Perales, Defendants."

4. The stays created by 11 U.S.C. § 362 existing by reason of the bankruptcy cases mentioned in the caption should be modified and lifted as to the state court suit mentioned in paragraph 3 above to the extent that Jessica Polley ("Polley") will be permitted to conduct post-judgment discovery activity in such suit and to engage in judgment-collection activities against Metro A, LLC, Sun Holdings, LLC, POP Restaurants, LLC, Firebrand Properties, LP, Corral

Group, LP, Guillermo Perales, and Fries Management, LLC, and the state court will be at liberty to take such actions in reference to such post-judgment discovery activity and such judgment-collection activities as the state court deems appropriate.

Now that the references to the bankruptcy court have been withdrawn as to the proceedings and matters mentioned in the April 16, 2010, order in Case Nos. 4:10-CV-055-A and 4:10-CV-257-A, the court is treating the motions for leave to file interlocutory appeals filed by Polley in Case No. 4:09-CV-616-A (consolidated with Nos. 4:09-CV-641-A and 4:09-CV-642-A) to be motions for reconsideration of the rulings as to which the interlocutory appeals were sought and related rulings of the bankruptcy court. By this memorandum opinion and order, the court vacates many of those rulings, and provides the court's reasons for doing so.

I.

THE INTERLOCUTORY, VEL NON,
CONTROVERSY

The outcome of most of the pending disputes between Polley and the defendants in Polley III is controlled, or significantly affected, by the resolution of the highly contested issue as to whether the Polley III judgment was final and appealable on October 15, 2008, when it was signed by Judge David Evans, the presiding state district judge. If it was final and appealable at that time, the state district court lost jurisdiction over the judgment before Polley III was removed to the bankruptcy court, with the consequence that the bankruptcy court did not have jurisdiction in the removed state district court action to make certain rulings it made affecting the judgment. For the reasons given below, the court has concluded that the judgment was final and appealable when it was signed October 15, 2008.

A. Chronology of Events Potentially Pertinent to a Resolution of the Issue of Finality and Appealability

1. The Rendition of the Polley III Judgment and Related Events

The defendants against whom the Polley III judgment was rendered were Metro A, LLC ("Metro A"), Denar Restaurants, LLC ("Denar"), Sun Holdings, LLC ("Sun"), POP Restaurants, LLC ("POP"), Golden Restaurants, Inc. ("Golden"), Firebrand Properties, LP ("Firebrand"), Corral Group, LP ("Corral"), Kansas Corral, LLC ("Kansas"), Sunny Corral Management, LLC ("Sunny"), Fries Management, LLC ("Fries"), TAG Corral, LLC ("TAG"), Indie Corral, LLC ("Indie"), and Guillermo Perales ("Perales") (collectively, "Polley III defendants"). Before October 15, 2008, there was a fourteenth defendant, An-Mar Companies, L.L.C. ("An-Mar"), in Polley III.

At the commencement of the October 15, 2008, judgment hearing, an attorney for Polley informed Judge Evans that, before proceeding, Polley wanted to nonsuit An-Mar. Judge Evans responded by saying "An-Mar has been nonsuited." App. 2 at 44.<sup>2</sup> Judge Evans then said, in reference to a form of judgment that was being proposed by the attorneys for Polley, that: "The Court is going to change the caption on the judgment to reflect that [An-Mar is] not in the case any longer. That's just a form of reordering the caption." Id. The hearing concluded with Judge Evans announcing, "I'm going to grant the default judgment in this case against all defendants [in the amount of $957,011.63], save and except the nonsuited Defendant, An-Mar Companies." Id. at 46-47.

<sup>2</sup>The "App. ____ at ____" references in this document are to Bates-type page numbers in appendices that have been filed in one of the captioned actions or a related action pending in this court. As a reference to an appendix is first used in this memorandum opinion and order, information identifying the appendix referenced will be footnoted at that point.

The "App. 2 at ____" references are to an appendix filed January 4, 2010, in Case No. 4:09-CV-616-A (consolidated with No. 4:09-CV-641-A and No. 4:09-CV-642-A) titled "Refiled Exhibits to the Objection of Appellees to Motion for Leave to File Interlocutory Appeal and Brief in Support Thereof Filed October 21, 2009." All items on file in Case No. 4:09-CV-616-A (as consolidated) are deemed to be part of the record of the captioned actions. See, e.g., April 16, 2010, order in Case No. 4:10-CV-055-A at 11.

Before being changed by Judge Evans, the caption of the judgment listed the names of the original fourteen defendants, including An-Mar. As the record reflects, before Judge Evans signed the judgment, he marked through An-Mar's name and placed his initial by his mark-through, thus indicating that, by marking through the name, he was engaging in a judicial act. App. 1 at 73.<sup>3</sup> The body of the judgment names only the remaining thirteen defendants, and the damage award made by the judgment was against only those defendants. The judgment concluded with the statement that "[t]his judgment is final and disposes of all claims and all parties, and is appealable." Id. at 75.

2. The Motion for New Trial

On November 13, 2008, all the defendants against whom the Polley III judgment was rendered filed a motion for new trial. The motion was heard by Judge Evans on December 3, 2008. Because Judge Evans had not ruled on the motion for new trial within seventy-five days after October 15, 2008, the motion was overruled by operation of law on December 29, 2008.

<sup>3</sup>The "App. 1 at ____" references are to a two-volume appendix filed January 12, 2010, in Case No. 4:09-CV-616-A (as consolidated) titled "Complete Set of the Exhibits to the Motion for Leave to File Interlocutory Appeal and Administratively Consolidate Filed in the Consolidated Action and to Be Treated as Exhibits to Such Motion in Each Action."

3. The Notice of Appeal

On January 29, 2009, the Polley III defendants filed a notice of appeal to the Fort Worth Court of Appeals from the Polley III judgment and the overruling of their motion for new trial. The notice was accompanied by a motion for an extension of time for filing it, which alleged that the notice of was not timely filed because of a miscalculation of the deadline.<sup>4</sup> The appeal was given No. 02-09-00025-CV on the docket of the Fort Worth Court of Appeals.

4. The February 2, 2009, Letter of the Fort Worth Court of Appeals

By letter of February 2, 2009, directed to the attorney for the Polley III defendants, the clerk of the Fort Worth Court of Appeals acknowledged receipt of the notice of appeal but expressed concern that the court "may not have jurisdiction over this appeal from the trial court's March [sic] 15, 2008 Default Judgment because the judgment does not appear to dispose of Defendant An-Mar Companies, LLC, and does not appear to be a final appealable interlocutory order." App. 1 at 268. The letter advised that the appeal would be dismissed for want of jurisdiction unless by February 12, 2009, a party desiring to continue the appeal filed with the court a response showing grounds for continuing the appeal.

5. February 12, 2009, Response of Polley III Defendants to February 2, 2009, Letter of Fort Worth Court of Appeals

On February 12, 2009, the Polley III defendants responded to the February 2, 2009, letter of the Fort Worth Court of Appeals concerning the possibility that the Polley III judgment was an interlocutory order by requesting the Fort Worth Court of Appeals to retain the case on its docket and allow the Polley III defendants to continue their appeal. After reciting the facts pertinent to the rendition of the judgment, the Polley III defendants assured the appellate court that the Polley III judgment was not interlocutory but was final and appealable.

6. The Granting of the Motion of the Polley III Defendants for an Extension of Time to File Notice of Appeal

By order dated February 13, 2009, the Fort Worth Court of Appeals granted the motion the Polley III defendants had filed on January 29, 2009, for an extension of time for the filing of their notice of appeal. The order said that the clerk's and reporter's records were due March 16, 2009.

7. Letter from Fort Worth Court of Appeals Fixing Briefing Schedule in Appeal from Polley III Judgment

By letter of March 17, 2009, the Fort Worth Court of Appeals sent a letter to counsel for Polley and the Polley III defendants informing them that the clerk's record had been filed in No. 02-09-00025CV on March 12, 2009, and that the appellants' brief was due April 13, 2009.

8. The Filing of the Denar Bankruptcy and the Removal of Polley III to the Bankruptcy Court

On March 24, 2009, Denar filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy relief in the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Texas, Fort Worth Division ("Denar bankruptcy case"). The case was assigned to Bankruptcy Judge Russell F. Nelms. On that same date, Denar caused Polley III to be removed from the state district court to the bankruptcy court, where it was docketed in the Denar bankruptcy case as Adversary Proceeding No. 09-04165-rfn.

9. Removal of Polley III Appeal to the Bankruptcy Court

On April 10, 2009, all Polley III defendants caused the appeal from the Polley III judgment to be removed from the Fort Worth Court of Appeals to the bankruptcy court, where it was docketed in the Denar bankruptcy case as Adversary Proceeding No. 09-04176-rfn.

10. Order of the Fort Worth Court of Appeals in Response to the Removal of the Polley III Appeal

On April 21, 2009, the Fort Worth Court of Appeals acknowledged the removal to the bankruptcy court of the appeal from the Polley III judgment, and ordered that for administrative purposes the appeal was abated and treated as a closed case. The order went on to provide that "[i]f the federal court remands the case to this court, this appeal will be automatically reinstated when the federal court issues a remand order and the federal court clerk mails a certified copy of the order to this court." App. 6 at 211.<sup>5</sup>

11. Judge Nelms's Order Remanding Polley III to State District Court as to All Defendants Other than Denar

On May 28, 2009, Judge Nelms signed an order in Adversary No. 09-04165-rfn remanding Polley III to the state district court as to all parties except Denar, but denying a remand as to Denar.

12. Judge Nelms's Order Declaring the Polley III Judgment to Be Interlocutory, but as to Denar Only

On May 28, 2009, Judge Nelms signed an order in Adversary No. 09-04165-rfn declaring as to Denar that the Polley III judgment was interlocutory. The order said that it did not apply to any defendant in the remanded Polley III.

13. Judge Nelms's Order Remanding the Removed Appeal to the Fort Worth Court of Appeals as to All Appellants Other than Denar, and Dismissing the Appeal as to Denar Without Prejudice to Refiling

On June 4, 2009, Judge Nelms signed an order in Adversary No. 09-04176-rfn remanding to the Fort Worth Court of Appeals the removed appeal from the Polley III judgment as to all appellants other than Denar; and, the order provided that, as to Denar, "the Removed Appeal is Dismissed Without Prejudice to re-filing." App. 6 at 567.

14. Motion of Polley III Defendants to Fort Worth Court of Appeals to Reopen Case on Appeal

On June 12, 2009, the Polley III defendants (other than Denar) filed a motion in the Fort Worth Court of Appeals Case No. 2-09-00025-CV asking the court to reopen the appellate proceedings in that case. The movants informed the court that the bankruptcy court had remanded the appeals of all defendants-appellants other than Denar.

15. The Supplemental Response of the Polley III Defendants to the February 2, 2009, Letter of the Fort Worth Court of Appeals

On June 12, 2009, after retaining a new set of attorneys, the Polley III defendants (other than Denar) filed with the Fort Worth Court of Appeals (1) a supplemental response to the February 2, 2009, letter of the Fort Worth Court of Appeals, this time reversing the position they took in their February 12, 2009, letter by now maintaining that the Polley III judgment was an interlocutory, nonfinal judgment, and that the appeal should be dismissed for want of jurisdiction, and (2) an emergency motion asking for a temporary stay of enforcement of the Polley III judgment on the ground that the Fort Worth Court of Appeals had not completed its jurisdictional inquiry by a determination of whether the Polley III judgment was interlocutory or final.

16. Order of the Fort Worth Court of Appeals Granting Motion of Polley III Defendants to Reopen the Case

On June 30, 2009, the Fort Worth Court of Appeals issued an order in Case No. 02-09-00025-CV (a) granting the motion of the Polley III defendants (as appellants in the appeal) to reopen the case, (b) abating the appeal and remanding the case to the trial court for the entry of (i) a written order nonsuiting An-Mar in accordance with the oral announcement of nonsuit as to An-Mar made on the record by Polley in open court on October 15, 2008, and (ii) a written order nonsuiting or severing Polley's causes of action against Denar, (c) ordering that the appeal was to be reinstated without further order of the court upon receipt by the court of the clerk's record containing the two orders the court of appeals required, and (d) denying the motion of the Polley defendants to temporarily stay enforcement of the Polley III judgment.

17. The Order Signed by Judge Evans Confirming that on October 15, 2008, the State District Court Granted Polley's Nonsuit as to An-Mar

On July 10, 2009, the Polley III defendants (other than Denar) filed in the Polley III state district court a motion to quash and for protective order seeking a ruling that Polley should not be permitted to take post-judgment discovery or other enforcement actions in Polley III. Basically, the ground of the motion was that post-judgment discovery and actions to enforce the Polley III judgment should not be permitted because the Polley III judgment was interlocutory. Judge Evans heard the emergency motion on July 13, 2009. During the hearing, he signed an order stating that "[o]n the 15th day of October, 2008, the Court granted Plaintiff's Non-Suit as to An-Mar Companies, LLC." App. 2 at 81. Judge Evans denied the motion to quash, announced that he was going to order that post-judgment depositions be taken in Polley III, and directed the parties to submit a new scheduling order providing that depositions would be scheduled within fourteen days of the date of the hearing.

18. Judge Evans's Order of Severance

On July 15, 2009, Judge Evans signed an order in Polley III severing Polley's claims against Denar from her claims against the other Polley III defendants and ordering that the severed claims be given Case No. 48-238773-09 in the state district court.

19. Motion to the Fort Worth Court of Appeals by the Polley III Defendants for Clarification of the June 30, 2009, Order; and the Ruling of the Fort Worth Court of Appeals Denying the Motion

On July 17, 2009, the appellants in appeal No. 02-09-00025-CV filed with the Fort Worth Court of Appeals an emergency motion to clarify the court's June 30, 2009, order. The thrust of the motion was to obtain a declaration that the Polley III judgment was interlocutory and, therefore, was not appealable until Judge Evans signed the July 13, 2009, order concerning An-Mar's nonsuit. On July 22, 2009, the Fort Worth Court of Appeals issued an order denying the emergency motion to clarify.

20. The Filing of the Golden Bankruptcy Cases and Second Removal of State District Court Polley III

On July 23, 2009, Golden, TAG, Indie, and Kansas each filed a bankruptcy case under Chapter 11, and on August 7, 2009, Sunny filed a bankruptcy case under Chapter 11. The Golden and Sunny bankruptcy cases (collectively, "Golden bankruptcy cases") were all assigned to Judge Nelms.<sup>6</sup> The debtors in the Golden bankruptcy cases caused Polley III again to be removed to the bankruptcy court where, this time, it was docketed as Adversary Proceeding No. 09-04253-rfn in the Golden bankruptcy cases.

21. Letter from Fort Worth Court of Appeals to Counsel Concerning Reinstatement of Appeal from Polley III Judgment

On July 30, 2009, the clerk of the Fort Worth Court of Appeals informed counsel for the parties in Case No. 02-09-00025-CV that the court had received a supplemental clerk's record containing the trial court orders issued pursuant to the order of June 30, 2009, of the Fort Worth Court of Appeals and that the appeal was reinstated. The letter informed counsel that the appellants' brief was due August 31, 2009.

22. Notice to Fort Worth Court of Appeals of the Golden Bankruptcy Cases

On August 12, 2009, bankruptcy counsel for Golden, Kansas, TAG, Indie, and Sunny notified the Fort Worth Court of Appeals of the Golden bankruptcy cases.

<sup>6</sup>On August 19, 2009, Judge Nelms signed an order granting joint administration of the Sunny bankruptcy case with the previously filed Golden, TAG, Indie, and Kansas bankruptcy cases under Case No. 09-44425-RFN-11.

23. September 4, 2009, Order in No. 09-04165-rfn Setting Aside Polley III Judgment and Granting Denar a New Trial

On September 4, 2009, Judge Nelms issued an order in Adversary No. 09-04165-rfn ordering that Denar's default in failing to file an answer in Polley III on or about October 13, 2008, was set aside and that Denar was granted a new trial in Polley III.

24. Removal to the Bankruptcy Court in Golden Bankruptcy Cases of the Appeal to the Fort Worth Court of Appeals of the Polley III Judgment

On September 25, 2009, Golden, TAG, Indie, Kansas, and Sunny caused the appeal to the Fort Worth Court of Appeals of the Polley III judgment again to be removed to the bankruptcy court, where it was docketed in the Golden bankruptcy cases as Adversary No. 09-04320-rfn.

25. October 9, 2009, Order of Fort Worth Court of Appeals Acknowledging Removal of Polley III Appeal

On October 9, 2009, the Fort Worth Court of Appeals issued an order in No. 02-09-00025-CV acknowledging that it had been notified that on September 25, 2009, the case was removed to the bankruptcy court. The order stated that for administrative purposes the case was abated and would be treated as a closed case, and that if the case is remanded the appeal will automatically be reinstated when the federal court issues a remand order and the federal court clerk mails a certified copy of the order to the Fort Worth Court of Appeals.

B. Texas Standards for Determining Finality and Appealability

In 1966 the Texas Supreme Court recognized that "[t]he finality of judgments for appealability has been a recurring and nagging problem throughout the judicial history of this State." N.E. Indep. Sch. Dist. v. Aldridge, 400 S.W.2d 893, 895 (Tex. 1966). Finally, in 2001, the Texas Supreme Court in Lehmann v. Har-Con Corp., 39 S.W.3d 191 (Tex. 2001), after reviewing the struggles the Court had experienced for more than one hundred years in seeking to define an acceptable standard to be applied, id. at 195-203, made a series of pronouncements to the end of eliminating uncertainty on the subject. The Court stated, as a general proposition, that the standards to be applied should have the goal of ensuring that the right to appeal is not lost by an overly technical application of the law, and that "this principle should guide in determining whether an order is final." Id. at 205. The Court then said that:

[W]hen there has not been a conventional trial on the merits, an order or judgment is not final for purposes of appeal unless it actually disposes of every pending claim and party or unless it clearly and unequivocally states that it finally disposes of all claims and all parties.

Id.

The Court explained the importance of a study of both the record and the language of the order in the making of the determination of finality, noting that "whether a judicial decree is a final judgment must be determined from its language and the record in the case," id. at 195, and that:

The record may help illumine whether an order is made final by its own language, so that an order that all parties appear to have treated as final may be final despite some vagueness in the order itself . . . .

Id. at 206.

Important to the instant action, the Court made special mention of the desirability of the use in an order that was intended to be final of the recitation that it "finally disposes of all parties and all claims and is appealable." Id. The Court again emphasized that an "order must be read in light of the importance of preserving a party's right to appeal." Id. And, the Court added that, "[i]f the appellate court is uncertain about the intent of the order, it can abate the appeal to permit clarification by the trial court." Id.

In M.O. Dental Lab v. Rape, 139 S.W.3d 671 (Tex. 2004), the Texas Supreme Court reiterated, and applied, the Lehmann principles that it may be necessary for the appellate court to look in the record of the case to determine whether an order disposes of all pending claims and parties, id. at 674, and that "the record illuminates whether an order that all parties appear to have treated as final may be final despite some vagueness in the order itself," id. at 674-75 (internal quotation marks, brackets & ellipsis omitted). As will be noted below, those principles bear on an evaluation of the finality and appealability issue in this case.

C. Application of the Lehmann Standards to the Issue of Finality and Appealability of the Polley III Judgment

An application of the Lehmann standards to the Polley III judgment, the district court record of the judgment hearing, the wording of the judgment, the appellate actions taken by the Polley III defendants after the judgment was rendered, and the actions of the Fort Worth Court of Appeals lead inevitably to the conclusion that the Polley III judgment was final and appealable as of the date of its rendition, October 15, 2008.

The record is clear that before the judgment was rendered, Judge Evans considered that An-Mar was out of the case by reason of the nonsuit Polley announced as to An-Mar at the commencement of the default judgment hearing, the judge's acceptance of that nonsuit,<sup>7</sup> and the action the judge took on the judgment document itself to reflect that the claims against An-Mar were concluded. The effect of a nonsuit by a party is to render the merits of the case moot as to that party. See Univ. of Tex. v. Estate of Blackmon, 195 S.W.3d 98, 101 (Tex. 2006). The nonsuit extinguishes a case or controversy from the moment an oral motion is made in open court. Id. at 100. So that there would be no possible uncertainty as to whether all claims were being finally resolved, Judge Evans performed the judicial acts of marking through An-Mar's name in the style of the document he was to sign as a judgment and placing his initials by the mark-out, and then of signing a judgment resolving the claims against the rest of the defendants, which concluded with the finding that "[t]his judgment is final and disposes of all claims and parties, and is appealable." App. 1 at 75. Thus, the judgment and the record leading to it, when considered together, establish with unmistakable clarity that the judgment was a final judgment as to all claims and parties.

The Polley III defendants never contended otherwise until they found it to their advantage to do so as an integral part of their maneuvers to avoid enforcement of the judgment. When the Polley III defendants responded on February 12, 2009, to the February 2, 2009, letter of the Fort Worth Court of Appeals, they emphasized that An-Mar had been removed from the case before the Polley III judgment was rendered, saying, "the transcript shows that [Polley] nonsuited An-Mar Companies, LLC before it [sic] obtained the Default Judgment against the remaining [defendants]." App. 6 at 76. The concluding remark of the Polley III defendants in the body of their response was the unqualified representation to the Fort Worth Court of Appeals that "[a]s a result of [Polley's] nonsuit of An-Mar Companies, LLC, [the remaining defendants] understand that the Default Judgment is a final, appealable judgment." Id. at 77. The response ended with a prayer that the Fort Worth Court of Appeals "retain this case on its docket and allow [the Polley defendants] to continue their appeal." Id.

Obviously, the Polley III defendants were never misled into thinking that the judgment was not final and appealable as of October 15, 2008. Their late filing of their notice of appeal was not caused by any uncertainty as to whether the judgment was final and appealable--rather, the late filing was the result of inadvertence.

Much is made in filings made by the Polley III defendants in the bankruptcy court of the apparent uncertainty expressed on February 2, 2009, by the Fort Worth Court of Appeals over the finality of the Polley III judgment. There even have been suggestions by the Polley III defendants that the appellate court, in effect, ruled that the judgment was interlocutory at the time of its rendition in October 2008. The court does not interpret the record as supporting such a contention. Instead, the facts suggest that the Fort Worth Court of Appeals made a determination that as of October 15, 2008, the Polley III judgment was final and appealable.

The appearance is that the February 2, 2009, letter of the appellate court showed the exercise by the appellate court of the level of caution recommended by the Texas Supreme Court in Lehmann when the Court suggested that if the appellate court is uncertain about the intent of the order appealed from, it can abate the appeal to permit clarification by the trial court. However, rather than to seek clarification by the trial court, the Fort Worth Court of Appeals sought clarification by the Polley III defendants. The Polley III defendants gave that clarification by referring in their February 12 response to the trial court record showing that An-Mar had been removed from the case on October 15, 2008. The clarification provided by the Polley III defendants apparently persuaded the Fort Worth Court of Appeals that it had jurisdiction. Were that not so, the appellate court presumably would have dismissed the appeal for want of jurisdiction as it said it would do by February 12, 2009, if a response showing grounds for continuing the appeal was not provided to the court by then. When the Polley III defendants provided the appellate court with the record of the district court hearing showing disposition by Judge Evans of the claims of An-Mar, the appellate court was able, as Lehmann recommended, to consider that record along with the judgment itself in making a determination as to whether finality was intended and accomplished. Not only that, the appellate court could readily see that no one's right to appeal was being put at risk by a conclusion that the Polley III judgment was final.

Nor can the June 30, 2009, order of the appellate court requiring a written order of the state district court nonsuiting An-Mar in accordance with Polley's oral announcement of nonsuit on October 15, 2008, be taken as a ruling by the appellate court that the judgment was not final and appealable as of October 15. If the appellate court thought that the judgment was not final and appealable, the action the court presumably would have taken would be to dismiss the appeal. Rather than to do that, the appellate court by its June 30, 2009, order was, again, exercising appropriate caution to the end of seeking to eliminate future controversy over finality and appealability of the judgment.

Understandably, after having received on June 12, 2009, the supplemental response of the Polley III defendants by which they reversed their position on finality and appealability of the October 15, 2008, judgment, the Fort Worth Court of Appeals would have had a concern that the issue had not been put to rest and a desire to eliminate future controversy on the subject of finality and appealability. Interestingly, the order Judge Evans signed on July 13, 2009, was not a written order nonsuiting An-Mar. Instead, the order simply stated that on October 15, 2009, "the Court granted Plaintiff's Non-Suit as to An-Mar Companies, LLC." App. 2 at 81. In other words, Judge Evans's order did nothing more on July 13, 2009, than the record of the October 15, 2008, hearing showed he did at that hearing. Nevertheless, that fact did not dissuade the Fort Worth Court of Appeals from the conclusion it apparently reached in February 2009 that it had jurisdiction to proceed with the appeal.

While the rule in Texas always has been that the filing, or open-court announcement, by a party of a nonsuit deprives the trial court of jurisdiction to take any action as to a claim asserted against the nonsuited party other than to dismiss it, the rule pre-Lehmann was that the clock for expiration of the trial court's plenary jurisdiction did not start to run as to the claim against a nonsuited party until the signing of an order dismissing the claim against that party. See In re Bennett, 960 S.W.2d 35, 38 (Tex. 1997). An argument might reasonably be made that the standards of finality and appealability announced in Lehmann modified the latter rule, at least when the issue is the determination of finality and appealability of a judgment that affects only the rights of litigants who have not been nonsuited. The court is inclined to think that Lehmann overruled the earlier requirement of a signed order of dismissal as to the claim of a nonsuited party to whatever extent that requirement is inconsistent with the Lehmann standards.<sup>8</sup>

<sup>8</sup>The court is conscious of the dicta contained in the opinion of the Texas Supreme Court in University of Texas v. Estate of Blackmon, 195 S.W.2d 98, 100 (Tex. 2006), that, while a nonsuit is effective when it is filed, the date on which the trial court signs an order dismissing the suit is the starting point for determining when a trial court's plenary power expires. The court cannot place significance on that dicta considering that the real issue before the Court for decision was the legal effect of the taking by a party of a nonsuit. The holding in the case was that "the nonsuit deprived the court of appeals of jurisdiction." Id.

However, even if the written-order requirement persists, it was satisfied as to An-Mar on October 15, 2008, when, after Polley announced on the record she was nonsuiting An-Mar and Judge Evans announced on the record that An-Mar was nonsuited, Judge Evans took the further judicial step of marking through An-Mar's name in the caption of the proposed judgment and placing his initial by the mark-out. By those judicial acts, Judge Evans noted in writing the dismissal of An-Mar from the suit before he rendered the Polley III judgment. When those judicial acts are considered together with the record of the hearing, there is certainty that Judge Evans intended his judicial conduct to be a dismissal of Polley's claim against An-Mar in response to her oral nonsuit. Even if there were some vagueness as to the intent of the judicial acts of Judge Evans, the vagueness would be overcome by the fact that all parties treated the judgment as final and appealable (at least until the Polley III defendants changed their position months later, after hiring new attorneys and becoming involved in bankruptcy proceedings that were calculated to frustrate Polley's attempts to collect the Polley III judgment).

Moreover, the issue is not when the plenary jurisdiction clock started to run as to disposition of Polley's claim against

An-Mar. Instead, the decisive issue is to when it started to run as to the disposition of her claims against the remaining thirteen defendants. Granted that the An-Mar nonsuit was interlocutory when it was made, it nevertheless, under well-established law, finally terminated Polley's claim against An-Mar. That final termination was followed by the signing by Judge Evans of a final judgment as to the claims against the remaining thirteen defendants. Thus, the final step to final disposition of all claims against all defendants was taken in the form of a written judgment that contained the finding that "[t]his judgment is final and disposes of all claims and parties, and is appealable." App. 1 at 75. Under those circumstances, there is no basis for a reasonable argument that the plenary jurisdiction timetable did not start to run as to all Polley III claims at the time of the signing of the final judgment on October 15, 2008.

BANKRUPTCY COURT'S RULINGS THAT ARE PERTINENT TO THE RULINGS NOW BEING MADE

The two removals in the Denar and Golden bankruptcy cases of the state district court Polley III and the appeal to the Fort Worth Court of Appeals from the Polley III judgment generated an active motion practice. The motions potentially applicable to the rulings contained herein are the following:

1. On March 30, 2009, Polley filed in Adversary No. 09-04165-rfn her motion asking the bankruptcy court to remand Polley III to the state district court.

2. On April 29, 2009, Denar filed in Adversary Nos. 09-04165-rfn and 09-04176-rfn its motion asking the bankruptcy court to make a determination that the Polley III judgment was interlocutory.

3. In the response Polley filed May 15, 2009, to Denar's April 29, 2009, motion, Polley requested that the bankruptcy court "remand this dispute to the state appellate court for disposition under state law." Polley's Resp. to Mot. for Determination that Judgment is Interlocutory, No. 09-04165-rfn (Doc. 47) at 10.

4. On May 19, 2009, Metro A, Sun, POP, Golden, Firebrand, Corral, Kansas, Sunny, TAG, Indie, and Perales joined in the April 29, 2009, motion of Denar in Adversary Nos. 09-04165-rfn and 09-04176-rfn seeking a determination that the Polley III judgment was interlocutory.

5. On July 17, 2009, Denar filed in Adversary No. 09-04165-rfn its motion to set aside Denar's default in Polley

III and the Polley III judgment and for new trial in Polley III.

6. On July 30, 2009, the debtors in the Golden bankruptcy cases filed in Adversary No. 09-04253-rfn their motion to set aside their defaults in Polley III and the Polley III judgment and for new trial in Polley III.

7. On July 30, 2009, the nondebtor Polley III defendants filed in Adversary No. 09-04253-rfn their joinder in the July 30, 2009, motion of the debtors in the Golden bankruptcy cases.

8. On August 12, 2009, Polley filed in the Golden bankruptcy cases her motion to modify the automatic stays in the Golden bankruptcy cases as they affected the state district court Polley III and the appeal to the Fort Worth Court of Appeals of the Polley III judgment.

9. On August 12, 2009, Polley filed in Adversary No. 09-04253-rfn a motion seeking a severance of the claims and issues against the non-bankruptcy defendants and a remand against the non-bankrupt defendants of Polley III to the state court for disposition under state law.

10. In October 2009, Polley filed her motions in the bankruptcy court and this court for leave to file interlocutory appeals. The motions filed in this court were docketed as Case Nos. 4:09-CV-616-A, 4:09-CV-641-A, and 4:09-CV-642-A, and were consolidated to be carried under Case No. 4:09-CV-616-A. The requests to pursue interlocutory appeals were directed to the orders adverse to Polley that Judge Nelms had issued in the Denar and Golden bankruptcy cases pertaining to Polley III and the appeal from the Polley III judgment. Basically, Polley sought leave to appeal from each of the orders rendered by Judge Nelms in response to the motions listed and described above. As noted earlier, supra at 5, the court is treating the motions for leave as motions for reconsideration of the rulings of Judge Nelms as to which leave to appeal was sought.

11. On October 29, 2009, Denar and the debtors in the Golden bankruptcy cases filed in Adversary Nos. 09-04165-rfn and 09-04253-rfn a motion to consolidate those adversary proceedings and compelling repleading in the removed Polley III.

Judge Nelms made the following rulings directly or indirectly in response to the motions mentioned above:

1. In a proceeding conducted by Judge Nelms on May 26, 2009, primarily for the purpose of announcing rulings, Judge Nelms ordered the lifting of the automatic stay applicable to Polley's claims against all Polley III defendants other than Denar, saying:

[T]o the extent that any stay at all applies to Polley's claims against the non-debtor defendants, that stay is lifted for cause. The stay is not lifted with respect to Polley's claims against the Debtor in this adversary proceeding.

App. 1 at 277.

2. On May 28, 2009, Judge Nelms granted in part Polley's March 30, 2009, motion to remand Polley III by issuing an order in Adversary No. 09-04165-rfn remanding Polley III to the state district court as to all Polley III defendants other than Denar.

3. By another order issued in Adversary No. 09-04165-rfn on May 28, 2009, Judge Nelms granted in part Denar's April 29, 2009, motion asking for a determination that the Polley III judgment was interlocutory by ruling that the judgment was interlocutory only as to Denar. The order said that it did not apply to any other Polley III defendant.

4. On June 4, 2009, Judge Nelms issued an order in Adversary No. 09-04176-rfn, apparently in response to the request Polley made in the document she filed May 15, 2009, that the bankruptcy court "remand this dispute to the state appellate court for disposition under state law," supra at 29, ¶ 3, remanding to the Fort Worth Court of Appeals as to all Polley III defendants other than Denar the appeal from the Polley III judgment and ordering with respect to Denar the dismissal of the removed appeal without prejudice to refiling.

5. On September 4, 2009, Judge Nelms issued an order in Adversary No. 09-04165-rfn ruling that Denar's default in failing to timely file an answer in Polley III was set aside and that Denar was granted a new trial in Polley III, thus seemingly granting the relief Denar sought by the motion it filed July 17, 2009, in that adversary proceeding (though Judge Nelms's order did not set aside the Polley III judgment itself as to Denar).

6. On October 2, 2009, when announcing rulings on pending motions, Judge Nelms made a ruling in the Golden bankruptcy cases on Polley's motion for relief from stay by announcing on the record that "[a]s to Polley's Motion to Lift the Automatic Stay, to the extent that any stay as to Polley Three is now in effect, that stay is lifted." App. 1 at 462.

7. On October 8, 2009, Judge Nelms issued an order in Adversary No. 09-04253-rfn denying the severance and remand relief sought by Polley in the motion she filed in that proceeding on August 12, 2009.

8. Also on October 8, 2009, Judge Nelms issued an order in Adversary No. 09-04253-rfn granting the July 30, 2009, motions that Judge Nelms took to be motions of all Polley III defendants (both debtor defendants and nondebtor defendants) to set aside their defaults in failing to timely answer in Polley III and to set aside the Polley III judgment and grant a new trial by ordering that each defendant's default in failing to timely file an answer in Polley III was set aside, that the October 15, 2008, judgment was set aside with respect to each defendant, and that each defendant was granted a new trial.

9. On December 8, 2009, Judge Nelms issued an order in Adversary No. 09-04253-rfn (in the Golden bankruptcy cases) and Adversary No. 09-04165-rfn (in the Denar bankruptcy case) granting the relief sought by Denar and the debtors in the Golden bankruptcy cases in their October 29, 2009, motion (seeking consolidation and a repleading) by ordering that Adversary Nos. 09-04165-rfn and 09-04253-rfn were consolidated, to bear from the point forward Adversary No. 09-04253-rfn, styled "Jessica Polley v. Golden Restaurants, Inc., et al.," and by ordering that Polley file an amended complaint in the consolidated adversary by December 18, 2009, in which she would replead her petition against all Polley III defendants.

III.

THE RULINGS NOW BEING MADE

While not agreeing with Polley that the Polley III judgment was not interlocutory, both counsel for the Polley III debtor-defendants and Judge Nelms seem to have agreed with Polley that if the judgment was not interlocutory when it was signed on October 15, 2008, the bankruptcy court would not have had jurisdiction to make the rulings that adversely affected the judgment.

In a telephone conference/hearing conducted January 8, 2010, counsel for the Polley III debtor-defendants expressed agreement that Judge Nelms "would not have had the power to set aside a default judgment in the procedural manner in which he did so" if the Polley III judgment was not interlocutory; and, counsel added his view that the threshold issue "is whether that judgment was final or interlocutory, and [he] would believe . . . that the rest will follow from that decision." App. 8 at 616.<sup>9</sup> Judge Nelms seemed to express agreement when he said on the record on October 2, 2009, while announcing certain of his rulings, that:

This case did introduce a new argument by Polley, that being that this Court does not have jurisdiction to set aside Judge Evans's order because . . . that order had been appealed to the Fort Worth Court of Appeals, and as such, I only had the same power that Judge Evans himself had, which according to Polley was no authority at all to reverse or set aside the default judgment. Polley contends that . . . the plenary power over Judge Evans's order had vested in the Fort Worth Court of Appeals, and as such, notwithstanding the removal of the case from Judge Evans's court, there was nothing for this Court to decide. This is an important issue, and notwithstanding any complaint by the Debtors as to the timing of that issue, it is an issue that the court must address. Ultimately, this issue circles back to one of the first issues addressed by this Court in Denar, and that is whether Judge Evans's order granting the default judgment was final or interlocutory.

App. 1 at 449-50.

Thus, for Judge Nelms to rule as he did, he had to find a way to avoid the jurisdictional bar created by pendency of a

<sup>9</sup>The "App. 8 at ____" reference is to a four-volume appendix filed March 19, 2010, in Case No. 4:09-CV-616-A (as consolidated) titled "Ms. Polley's Supplemental Response to Debtor-Appellees' Memorandum Regarding Plenary Jurisdiction to Set Aside Default Judgment, Appendix."

Polley III appeal at the time of its removals to the bankruptcy court. He found that way by adopting the position the debtor-defendants had taken in their motions and their responses to Polley's motions that the Polley III judgment did not become final and appealable until Judge Evans signed on July 13, 2009, the order stating that on October 15, 2008, he granted Polley's nonsuit as to An-Mar. Judge Nelms explained on the record at the October 2, 2009, proceeding that:

I am convinced that Judge Evans's order did not become final until July the 13th, 2009, the day he signed the order nonsuiting An-Mar.

That action reset the timetable for, among other things, filing a motion for new trial, and such motions were timely filed by the Defendants in this Court on July the 30th, 2009. Because of this, the Court does exercise jurisdiction over this case, and so, to the extent that Polley asked the Court to remand or abstain from hearing this adversary proceeding because it lacks jurisdiction, the Court denies that request.

Id. at 452-53.

Having agreed with Polley that the Polley III judgment was final and appealable on October 15, 2008, thus causing the bankruptcy court not to have jurisdiction to make rulings during and after May 2009 that adversely affected the judgment, the court has concluded that the following rulings of the bankruptcy court should be set aside and vacated: (1) the ruling in the May 28, 2009, order in Adversary No. 09-04165-rfn declining to remand Polley III as to Denar; (2) the ruling in the other May 28, 2009, order in Adversary No. 09-04165-rfn that as to Denar the Polley III judgment was interlocutory; (3) the rulings in the June 4, 2009, order in Adversary No. 09-04176-rfn that the Polley III appeal was not remanded as to Denar and that the appeal as to Denar was dismissed; (4) the rulings in the September 4, 2009, order in Adversary No. 09-04165-rfn that Denar's default in failing to file a timely answer in Polley III was set aside and that Denar was granted a new trial in Polley III; (5) the rulings in the October 8, 2009, order in Adversary No. 09-04253-rfn that the default of each Polley III defendant in failing to timely file an answer in Polley III was set aside, that the Polley III judgment was set aside as to each Polley III defendant, and that each Polley III defendant was granted a new trial; (6) the ruling in the other October 8, 2009, order in Adversary No. 09-04253-rfn denying Polley's motion to remand Polley III; and (7) the rulings in the December 8, 2009, order in Adversary No. 09-04253-rfn requiring Polley to replead in the removed Polley III and defining other procedural steps to be taken in Polley III. Correspondingly, the court has concluded that all pleadings filed pursuant to such December 8, 2009, order should be stricken.

The same reasons the bankruptcy had for remanding Polley III (except as to Denar), on May 28, 2009, and remanding the Polley III appeal (except as to Denar) on June 4, 2009, provide ample justifications for the remands that are now being ordered by this court. See id. at 272-77. The court concludes that there was never a good reason for Polley III or the appeal from the Polley III judgment to be pending in the bankruptcy court.

The Fort Worth Court of Appeals should be permitted to conclude the Polley III appeal, considering the resources it already has devoted to the appellate process and its familiarity with Texas legal principles. If the Polley III judgment is affirmed on appeal, the rights and obligations of Polley and the nondebtor defendants in relation to the Polley III judgment will be fixed, subject only to further appeal, and the amount of the indebtednesses owed to Polley by the debtor Polley III defendants will have become liquidated in an orderly fashion without further exhaustion of resources of this court or the bankruptcy court. Thus, the court concludes that, for cause, the automatic stays as to the appeal should be lifted.

None of the findings, conclusions, or rulings the court is making in this memorandum opinion and order are intended to suggest what the outcome should or would have been if Polley III had been decided by a judgment rendered after a trial rather than by a default judgment. However, the court considers important that the information available to the court shows that: Polley's conduct in obtaining a default judgment was perfectly legitimate once the defendants failed to timely answer; the defendants had a full and fair opportunity to seek relief from the judgment through their state court motion for new trial and the hearing on the motion; and, the defendants still have a full and fair opportunity to seek relief from the judgment through their appeal to the Fort Worth Court of Appeals. If the appellate court concludes that the state district court committed an error in rendering the judgment or in declining to set it aside in response to the motion for new trial, presumably the appellate court will give the Polley III defendants whatever relief they should have under Texas law. The court is of the view that the state courts, not the federal courts, should resolve those issues, all of which are governed by the procedural and substantive laws of the State of Texas.

The remand this court is ordering of Polley III to the state district court is, for the time being, for the limited purposes of permitting Polley to conduct post-judgment discovery in Polley III and to engage in collection activities against the nondebtor Polley III defendants. There is no reason why Polley should be denied those rights by the pendency of the bankruptcy cases filed by certain of the Perales-related companies. The record makes apparent that the filings of the bankruptcy cases were inspired by a desire to prevent Polley from being able to pursue her post-judgment rights arising from the existence of the Polley III judgment. That should not be permitted as to the nondebtor defendants.

Judge Nelms already has lifted the automatic stays as to Polley III. See id. at 462; see also id. at 277. The stay ruling of this court as to Polley III does not expand Judge Nelms's ruling. Instead, it narrows it by limiting permitted Polley III state district court activities to collection activities against the nondebtor defendants and post-judgment discovery activities.

IV.

THE SIGNIFICANCE GIVEN BY JUDGE NELMS TO THE AUTOMATIC STAY EXISTING BY REASON OF AN EARLIER-FILED BANKRUPTCY CASE IN THE DALLAS DIVISION

The subject of discussion under this heading is of a matter that does not appear directly to bear on the rulings the court is making in this memorandum opinion and order. However, Judge Nelms placed such significance on an automatic stay existing by reason of a bankruptcy case a Perales-owned company filed in the Dallas Division of this court before the filing of Polley III that the court thinks appropriate to express its views on that subject. First, the court must provide additional background information.

The six-year litigation saga between Polley and Perales and his companies<sup>10</sup> commenced with the filing by Polley in the year 2004 of a damage suit against, among others, Metro Restaurants ("Metro"), a Perales-owned company, complaining of sexual assaults committed on Polley by a supervisory employee at a restaurant operated by Metro in Euless, Texas ("Polley I"). Following a jury trial, Judge Evans rendered a judgment on July 25, 2007, in Polley I awarding Polley recovery from Metro of $869,172.95 based on the jury's verdict.

On July 2, 2008, Polley filed a suit in the district court of Tarrant County, Texas, 153rd Judicial District, against Metro and the fourteen companies that before October 15, 2008, were named as the defendants in Polley III, alleging that all the defendants were related entities and that Metro had transferred assets to the other defendants with the intent to delay, hinder, and defraud Polley in her attempts to make collection of the July 25, 2007, judgment in Polley I ("Polley II"). Eight days after Polley II was filed, Metro filed a Chapter 7 bankruptcy case in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas, Dallas Division, which was assigned to United States Bankruptcy Judge Harlin DeWayne Hale and was docketed as Case No. 08-33377-HDH-7 (the "Metro bankruptcy case"). On August 5, 2008, the attorney who had represented Metro in Polley I filed with the state district court in Polley II a notice of the Metro bankruptcy case. Apparently no further action has been taken in Polley II.

Polley III was filed on September 10, 2008. Polley alleged in an abbreviated form essentially the same liability facts against the Polley III defendants she had alleged against Metro in Polley I. She asserted that the defendants named in Polley III were jointly and severally liable for the negligence of Metro; and, she sought recovery of damages against the Polley III defendants based on that alleged joint and several liability. On October 10, 2008, the attorney who had represented Metro in Polley I filed in Polley III a notice of the Metro bankruptcy case that was identical to the one he had filed in Polley II.

On October 15, 2008, the Polley III judgment was rendered. On November 13, 2008, the Polley III defendants filed their motion for new trial, which was heard by Judge Evans on December 3, 2008. On December 3, 2008, the Polley III defendants filed their answer in Polley III. The motion for new trial was overruled by operation of law on December 29, 2008. On January 29, 2009, the Polley III defendants filed their notice of appeal to the Fort Worth Court of Appeals. On February 2, 2009, the Fort Worth Court of Appeals sent to the attorney for the Polley III defendants the letter raising the interlocutory issue. In late January 2009 and on February 3, 2009, Polley engaged in attempts to obtain post-judgment discovery in Polley III. On February 3, 2009, the Polley III defendants filed a motion in Polley III asking Judge Evans to quash Polley's discovery attempts.

On the date when the motion to quash was filed, the Polley III defendants initiated Adversary Proceeding No. 09-03036-hdh against Polley and her state court attorney in the Metro bankruptcy case by a motion seeking an emergency temporary restraining order and preliminary injunctive relief to prevent Polley or her attorney from doing anything to prosecute, advance, bring to trial, enforce, abstract, levy, execute, or collect in connection with Polley II or Polley III.

On February 5, 2009, Judge Hale signed a temporary restraining order granting temporarily the relief sought by the February 3 filing. Among the findings made by Judge Hale were that "[b]ased upon the limited evidence before the Court, there is a substantial likelihood that the [the Polley III defendants] will prevail on their claims against [Polley and her attorney] after trial on the merits, as to [the Polley III defendants'] claims that the causes of action asserted in [Polley II and III] are property of the Estate and that [Polley and her attorney] have been, and will continue to, violate the automatic stay absent injunctive relief." App. 1 at 79.

After a formal hearing conducted by Judge Hale on March 5, 2009, Judge Hale rendered an order on March 9, 2009, denying the injunctive relief requested by the February 3 motion, this time expressing the conclusion that "the state court lawsuit, also called 'Polley III' by the parties, does not violate the stay" and that "[the Polley III defendants] have not met their burden of showing a likelihood of prevailing on the merits." Id. at 3.

Judge Hale went on to find that:

The state court petition in Polley [sic] III seeks joint and several liability against nondebtor entities for negligence claims which Ms. Polley allegedly holds against them. These negligence claims could not have been raised by the Debtor or Trustee in this case. She did not sue these parties for claims, such as fraudulent transfer or alter ego, which would belong to the estate. Rather, she has asserted independent claims. . . . At the preliminary injunction hearing, Polley's counsel explained their theories upon which the claims rest. Those theories are not estate claims. . . .

[The Polley III defendants] raise good points as to whether some of them can be liable to [Polley] in the state court judgment, as some of [the Polley III defendants] were not even in existence at the time Polley's claims arose. They also spent a lot of time during the preliminary injunction hearing trying to poke holes in [Polley's] pleadings and procedure before the state court. These issues, along with actual merits of the claims are more properly matters to be resolved by the state courts.

Id. at 4 (citation omitted).

This leads to a discussion of the consideration given by Judge Nelms to the Metro bankruptcy case in certain of his rulings that are mentioned in section II of this memorandum opinion and order.

When Judge Nelms announced on August 27, 2009, the rulings he made in the order he issued September 4, 2009, that Denar's default in failing to timely file an answer in Polley III was set aside and granting Denar a new trial, Judge Nelms placed significant reliance on the Metro bankruptcy case. See id. at 119-24. Apparently Judge Nelms was influenced to grant Denar relief under Rule 60(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure from the Polley III judgment by his assumption that a factor that entered into the failure of the Polley III defendants to timely file an answer was a belief on the part of the attorney for the Polley III defendants that the automatic stay created by the Metro bankruptcy case applied to Polley III. Id. at 121-22, 124-25, 127.

By the time Judge Nelms announced on October 2, 2009, the rulings that led to his October 8, 2009, orders setting aside the defaults of the Polley III defendants and the Polley III judgment and granting a new trial as to each of the Polley III defendants, Judge Nelms seemed to have become firmly convinced that the automatic stay created by the Metro bankruptcy case had the effect of staying Polley III when the default judgment was entered and that the reason why the Polley III defendants did not timely file an answer in Polley III was reliance by an attorney for the Polley defendants on the Metro bankruptcy case automatic stay.

As to the latter point, Judge Nelms explained:

When the Court set aside the same judgment as to Denar, it noted the fact that Mr. Dobbins credibly and reasonably relied upon the application of the stay by not filing an answer on behalf of the Perales-related entities. I find the same is true as to all defendants, inasmuch as Mr. Dobbins made the same decision on behalf of all defendants, and all defendants were represented by the same counsel.

Id. at 456.

As to the conclusion that the automatic stay applied to Polley III, Judge Nelms explained:

Polley Three was on the date of the default judgment arguable property of the Metro Estate. This is true, even though Judge Hale later determined that it was not property of the estate. Thus, Polley Three was stayed when the default judgment was entered, and it remained stayed until Judge Hale ruled otherwise.

Id. at 455. Judge Nelms's reasoning was that, even though the Polley III petition alleged joint and several liability on the Polley III defendants for the actions of Polley's rapist, "[i]t is logical . . . to view the petition as a claim based on alter-ego, single-business enterprise, or the like," with the consequence that "Polley III was on the date of the default judgment arguable property of Metro estate." Id. at 9. In other words, Judge Nelms disagreed with the March 9, 2009, determination of Judge Hale that Polley III did not violate the automatic stay in the Metro bankruptcy case over which Judge Hale was presiding.

Based on his October 2, 2009, findings and conclusions, Judge Nelms decided to grant relief from the Polley III judgment under Rule 60(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Id. at 11.

Commenting first on the finding of Judge Nelms that credible and reasonable reliance by the representative of the Polley III defendants on the stay created by the Metro bankruptcy case is the reason why the Polley III defendants failed to timely file an answer in Polley III, the court makes the observation that if Judge Nelms had evidence available to him that supported that finding, the evidence provided false support because the only reliable evidence on that subject proves that the automatic stay in the Metro bankruptcy case was not the reason why the Polley III defendants failed to timely answer. The best evidence on that subject are the allegations in the motion for new trial filed by the Polley III defendants in state court on November 13, 2008, and the position taken by the Polley III defendants at the December 3, 2008, hearing on that motion.

The motion for new trial alleged, without qualification, that the failure to timely file an answer was caused by a clerical error resulting from a miscalculation of the answer date. App. 6 at 114, ¶ 4. The only mention in the motion of the Metro bankruptcy case stay was in the part of the motion describing what the Polley III defendants considered to be their meritorious defenses to the claims asserted against them in Polley III. Id. at 114-15, ¶¶ 5 & 6. Similarly, at the hearing on the motion for new trial, the only facts urged by the Polley III defendants as excusing their failure to timely file an answer were that the person responsible for calculating the answer date miscalculated it and conveyed the incorrect answer date to the attorney responsible for causing an answer to be filed. App. 7 at 171-73, 181.<sup>11</sup> In his concluding remarks, the lawyer for the Polley III defendants confirmed their position that the failure of the answer to be timely filed was the consequence of the miscalculation of the answer date, saying:

It's our position that she sent over the petition to Mr. Jones, advised him of her calculation of the answer date, and, consequently, an answer was not timely filed on October 13, 2008.

Id. at 181. As was true with the allegations in the motion for new trial, the only mention made of the Metro bankruptcy case stay at the hearing on the motion was to provide Judge Evans basis for a conclusion that there was a meritorious defense to Polley's claim in Polley III, not as an excuse for failure to timely file an answer.

The court turns now to Judge Nelms's finding that Polley III violated the Metro bankruptcy case stay. After having considered the rulings and analysis made by Judge Hale in his March 9, 2009, order and the explanations given by Judge Nelms on August 27 and October 2, 2009, and after having thoroughly studied the record, the court agrees with Judge Hale that Polley III did not violate the Metro bankruptcy case automatic stay. For the conclusion to be reached that Polley III violated the stay, the court would be required to reword the allegations of Polley's Polley III pleading to make them allege causes of action that Polley chose not to plead. The fact that a court might suspect that Polley would not be able to prove the theory of recovery she pleaded in Polley III does not provide justification for pretending that she pleaded other causes of action, such as fraudulent transfer or alter ego. If Polley had gone to trial in state court on her Polley III pleading, she would not have been permitted to prove fraudulent transfer or alter-ego theories of recovery. Rather, she would have been held to her pleading, which would have required her to prove that the Polley III defendants were jointly and severally liable with Metro for the assaults committed on Polley. The suspicion that she might not be able to make that proof does not permit an inference that she really was pleading unstated causes of action.

If the Polley III defendants had timely answered in Polley III, Polley would have been put to the test of making proof of her pleaded theory of recovery, just as would have been required of any other plaintiff whose allegations have been joined by a timely filed answer. The fact that defendants forfeited the right to put Polley to that test by failing to timely answer is no reason to pretend that Polley really did not intend to assert against them the theory of recovery she alleged.
